

Being the Change Factor Award Criteria

In Brillamun 2025, we are proud to recognize the participants who stand out by showing their leadership skills and by being the change factor. The three delegates from each committee who will be awarded will be the ones that show outstanding skills in different sets of attitudes and abilities in their committee.

The first factor that we will consider is initiative. Delegates must have the initiative to empower new ideas and solutions during the debate.

Communication will also be a key factor to be recognized as an outstanding member. Delegates need to show communication skills addressing others with positivity while persuading the whole committee with their unique and effective ideas.

We will also acknowledge delegates that show extensive knowledge on United Nations, their country or representation, as well as, the topic that is being debated. Position papers will also be taken into consideration. Position papers need to follow the regular format avoiding misuse of English. During the speaker's list, delegates that formulate challenging out-of-the-box questions, showing a clear purpose will be compensated. On the other hand, if the delegate has the abilities and knowledge to respond to questions with diplomacy and in accordance with real facts will be receiving recognition as well, take into account that if the chair doubts a fact stated by a delegate, the chair will feel free to further investigate about the case.

Delegates need to show critical thinking skills for the problems needed to be faced by the committee. Having good solutions, especially during crises, will be a very important factor to determine the best delegates, due to the fact that participants need to come in hand with effective solutions at the moment.

To conclude, the most important factor at Brillamun will be leadership. The delegate that demonstrates great leadership skills, gives value to the committee, shows importance to the topic, has empowering solutions, and persuades the entire committee of what is going to lead to the resolution of the current problem has what it takes to be a Brillamun leader. Be a leader, be the change factor.
